Chamber of Commerce for Enforcement of Zoning Ordinance

All Variance Requests to be Scanned by CC

The Chamber of Commerce directors adopted the following statement of policy at their meeting Tuesday evening:

"Due to many requests for variances in the Lemon Grove area in the past, Chamber of Commerce endorses a strict enforcement of the established plan of zoning. Generally speaking, the Chamber is opposed to any variances and requests that the County Planning Commission advise the Chamber immediately when applications are made for variances, if possible withholding action until the Board can meet."

The directors felt that the zoning law is set up to the best advantage and protection of the entire community and, therefore, variances should be discouraged.

President Baxter reported that approximately 2500 of the 3500 new Lemon Grove directories have been distributed to local residents and the project should be completed by the end of September.

The Board authorized the president to request of the proper authorities that a yellow light be installed as soon as possible at the intersection of Imperial, Palm, Cypress and San Miguel, due to the increasing number of accidents at that intersection.

Representation from Lemon Grove on the Grossmont Hospital Association executive committee was discussed. Action was deferred by the Board pending a report from a special advisory committee. Luther N. Hussey, Chamber vice president, has been named chairman and additional members will be appointed this week.

Upon adjournment of the Board meeting, director Sonka, who has been on leave for two months, reported some interesting experiences of his recent trip to the British Isles and Europe.

Need Girl Scout Workers Here

Increased registration and double school sessions have made it necessary for Scouters to bring to the attention of parents of Brownies and Girl Scouts living in Monterey Heights, the urgency for their co-operation.

Unless volunteer leaders are secured the girls will not receive the benefits of the excellent training the Girl Scout program offers.

Won't you spare the future citizens of your community a few hours each week. Please contact Mrs. Guy Winton, H 6-1056 or Mrs. Robert Davy, H 6-2557.

Mrs. Holland plunged in and grabbed her son. Judy, seeing her disappear in the water promptly followed, sliding down the slippery bottom into six feet of water. An inflated Navy raft was thrown into the pool and all three were safely pulled out of the water.

Reds Preach Hate Theme at German Youth Festival; Average Income Up

THE HATE THEME—The world press gave more space to the east German youth festival, during which Red leaders preached a theme of hate of western democracy to 2,000,000 German youths, than any other single event in recent history. The demonstration reached its climax with half a million Soviet-zone boys and girls swearing loyalty to Stalin. From the Communist viewpoint, the festival was one of the most successful propaganda stunts in Red history.

But from the viewpoint of the average boy and girl in the home towns of America, viewing the event from afar, the mass hysteria had such a flavor of Nazism it was nauseating. To the American youngsters of high school and college age a football game is of more interest than staged political parades and the wild speeches of fanatics.

American youngsters, however, could not miss the hate theme preached by Red leaders. It was evident in every speech and at every moment during the rally. For the first time many American boys and girls realized there can be only one ending to this build-up—the eventual clash of the free world and Communism.

There was one bright spot in the whole affair. A few of the thousands of Communist youths slipped into the western zone of Berlin for a first-hand look at the "horrible conditions" preached by their leaders. What they found was surprising and revealing. These few learned the truth and may carry it behind the iron curtain to their families and friends.

YOUR INCOME—According to the department of commerce the average income for each man, woman and child in the United States last year was $1,436, a gain of $116, or 9 per cent over 1949.

The average home-owner, however, had no reason to feel happy about the report. The cost of living increased 6.5 per cent during the same period and the rise in the tax burden cut down the net gain.

The total income to individuals over the nation was a record $217,000,000,000, a gain of 11 per cent over 1949. The department said average incomes ranged from $698 in Mississippi to $1,909 in Delaware and $1,986 in the District of Columbia.

DISAGREEMENT—The senate armed services and foreign relations committees last week issued a statement saying that the group would make no report on the eight-week MacArthur hearing. The committee said that formal evidence of disagreement in the senate on far east policy might have had effect on the Korean-truce negotiations and signing of the peace treaty with Japan next month.

That statement had hardly been made public knowledge when eight senators, members of those committees, issued their own conclusions drawn from the long hearings, calling the Truman administration's far east policy a catastrophic failure. They declared that it "represents the most desolate failure in the history of our foreign policy."

These eight senators have made it clear that there is disagreement in the senate. It would seem, therefore, the conclusions of the full committee can no longer be withheld for reasons given and should be made public immediately. There is little likelihood that it will be, however.

Contrary to what these eight senators may say, there is a feeling in Washington these men put their political ambitions above the welfare of their country as expressed by the full committee's vote to withhold its report for the present.

RUSSIAN PROTEST—There is new evidence that trade reprisals against the iron curtain countries for their anti-American actions are beginning to hurt. The latest evidence comes from no less an authority than the Kremlin itself.

In a note delivered to the state department, the Soviet bluntly accused the U. S. of aggravating serious tension between the two countries by canceling the 1951 American-Soviet trade pact.

Congress ordered the canceling of trade concessions to iron curtain countries early in the year. While the cancellation will not bar Soviet goods from this country, it will increase tariffs on them and make it harder for them to compete in the U. S. market.

The Russians would like to continue their campaign of distortion and abuse against the United States, but at the same time enjoy trade concessions offered friendly nations. The Soviet Union is finding, however, it can't have its cake and eat it too.

ARMY NEEDS—The nation's needs in manpower for this fiscal year—June 30 to June 30—was made known last week. It gives the young men in the nation an idea of what the future holds in store for them.

Selective service announced it expected to draft 300,000 men during the year—an average of 25,000 a month. There have also been reports the army may need 430,000 alone to fill gaps caused by discharges.

Some 550,000 men were called up by draft boards between last September and June 30. The defense department already has asked for 35,000 men in August, 34,000 in September and 41,000 in October.

WEST POINT—The first of the 90 cadets involved in West Point's cribbing scandal left the academy last week. Others will be sent home this week and in the near future.

Five days after receiving their orders the men must report to their draft boards. They must either register for the draft or if already registered, advise their boards of a change of status.

Meanwhile, President Truman has ordered a full investigation of the athletic systems at both West Point and Annapolis to determine if the service academies are overemphasizing football and other sports.

TRUCE TALKS—Conflicting reports continue concerning the possibilities of success in the Korean truce talks. One day there are reports that progress is being made, the next that the talks are near collapse.

At the moment there seems to be little reason to expect a settlement. Red China is reported to have said: "If the American side stubbornly adheres to its unreasonable demand for plunder and rejects the just and reasonable proposal of our side, an agreement will be impossible."

In other words, the Communists are unwilling to compromise on an armistice line. The Allies have indicated they will compromise, but will not accept the 38th parallel.

Meanwhile, the Reds have increased their propaganda campaign with a "people's funeral" for a soldier reportedly killed by Allied troops in the Kaesong neutral zone. It begins to look like the build-up for a break in the truce talks.

RED PROPAGANDA . . . The famous "thumbs down" picture of General Dwight D. Eisenhower was made in Copenhagen last January during a tour of military installations. Recently, the Reds of east Berlin caricatured it, adding the dollar sign and a grinning skull and carried the picture in a parade. The Reds have interpreted the picture as they chose, indicating that General Eisenhower turned thumbs down on using American youth in the armies of Europe.

SISTER KENNY INCURABLY ILL . . . Sister Kenny, Australian nurse who became leading crusader in war against polio, declared recently that she is incurably ill and "has little time left in this world." Still, she went ahead with plans to attend international polio conference in Copenhagen. She receives mail in Australia from all over the world.

CLEAN-SHAVEN PEACHES . . . Soon, thanks to this machine being tried in Spartansburg, S. C., your peaches will come to you in shining nudity. The gadget is a peach polisher designed to take the fuzz off the peach and apply a thin coat of wax to seal in the natural flavor of the fruit and reduce shrinkage. Revolving brushes do the job. Examining some newly-shaved peaches as they come through the machine are Les Collier and Ben Gramling. No, an electric razor won't work.

Propaganda War

THE current experiment in penetrating the iron curtain by balloons may be a great success or it may fail. It is too early yet to say. But the important thing is that it's an attempt by private individuals under the free-enterprise system to try out certain methods of psychological propaganda—or call it psychological warfare if you will—which governments will not and perhaps cannot tackle.

Today the state department's propaganda effort is seriously hamstrung by congressional penny pinching, while the American military men who now dominate our foreign policy believe that the only way to stop Russia is to have more and bigger guns. They have little faith in psychological warfare. Accordingly, the national security council has ruled out any strong appeals to the people in the iron curtain countries to revolt, sabotage, or disrupt their coniform governments.

Yet psychological warfare to be successful must offer something—a chance for freedom, for peace, more food or an end of oppression. American propaganda frequently fails because it offers nothing.

The citizen of Czechoslovakia is not interested in hearing foreign radio broadcasts tell him the Soviet system is evil. He knows the Soviet system is evil; what he wants to hear from the Voice of America are ways by which he can throw off the yoke of oppression.

Stalin's Achilles' Heel

These are some of the reasons why private individuals tackled this experiment of trying to make the iron curtain a lace curtain. Personally I am convinced from my last winter's study of the iron curtain countries and from other information that it's not the atomic bomb but contact with free peoples that the Soviet fears most.

Therefore, if we are to win the subjugated nations over to our side, we must inspire them, encourage them and above all, keep in contact with them. It was because Stalin mortally feared such contact that he erected the iron curtain and it is to hit this Achilles' heel that a group of private individuals and organizations, has now launched messages of hope, friendship and encouragement by balloon into Czechoslovakia.

The people who had the courage to sponsor this project are the American Crusade for Freedom organization, the Inter-American Federation of Free Trade Unions which has been fighting Communism throughout Latin America, veterans or prisoners of war chiefly from Belgium, France, Holland and Italy, the General Federation of Women's Clubs with 5,500,000 members in 32 countries plus another five and a half million in the United States, the A.F.L., Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, the C.I.O., Canadian Congress of Labor, and the International Federation of Free Journalists, comprising about 1,000 newsmen exiled from Soviet countries.

The chief dynamo in this intricate operation has been Abbott Washburn, loaned by General Mills of Minneapolis to the committee for free Europe which has done such an important job of beaming broadcasts into Czechoslovakia and placed the freedom bell in Berlin last year. Harold Stassen, who heads the Crusade for Freedom, has also helped to mastermind the operation.

It is considered especially significant in Europe that these balloons are being aimed at Czechoslovakia after the imprisonment of William Oatis and that among their sponsors are the Federation of Free Journalists. Hitherto the United States' official policy has leaned toward paying virtual ransom money when its citizens have been seized by the coniform.

However, it is now realized that the more you pay out in concessions to the Soviet the more Moscow demands in ransom money and the more it is inclined to maltreat American citizens and to increase the blackmail demands. America's cracking down on Czech trade is an indication of this new stiffening of policy by the U. S. and the current balloon operation supplements it. This may help to show the coniform that, instead of aiding the abuse of our citizens lying down, we intend to retaliate.

Story of Friendship

Around Europe—Germans crowd around the balloon truck convey when it sets up operations at night like kids watching circus wagons unload at home. . . . One trouble is to keep the crowds from smoking when near the hydrogen tanks. . . . Radio free Europe, operated partly by Czech refugees in Munich and financed by the Crusade for Freedom, has poured a daily barrage of messages to the Czech people giving them the story of friendship.

FLOOD RELIEF

Kansas-Missouri Relief Funds Asked

President Truman has asked Congress to appropriate $400,000,000 for rehabilitation and relief of sufferers from recent floods in Kansas, Missouri and nearby areas. The President told Congress the area is of such importance to the nation that its speedy recovery is vital.

Under the President's plan some of the funds would be used to pay rehabilitation grants to victims of the floods. A part of it would be used for loans, but many in the area lost everything and now have nothing to put up as security. These persons would have to be aided with outright grants.

To speed action on the measure, Vice-President Barkley referred it to the senate public works and appropriations committees.

CIVILIAN AIRLIFT

World's First Civilian 'Airlift' Supplies Huge Ore Development

The world's first civilian "airlift" of major proportions is now taking place in the barren wastelands of northern Quebec and western Labrador, where aircraft have really come into their own in the transportation of heavy industrial equipment.

Iron Ore Company of Canada is using "airlift" techniques to rush the development of its Knob Lake mines which lie in the desolate wasteland 320 air miles north of the St. Lawrence River port of Seven Islands, Quebec. With U. S. sources and reserves of top-grade iron ore dwindling at a rapid rate, the pressure of defense production demand for this essential mineral makes every hour count in the development and exploitation of these hitherto almost inaccessible mines.

Everything—mine sites, camps, dams for electric power, highways, bridges, and a 350-mile railroad to bring out the ore—must be constructed from scratch. And construction equipment to do the job at Knob Lake must be hauled in by air over the barren, trackless wilderness. The "airlift" is the only possible solution, according to mine officials.

Largest aircraft in the lift is a Fairchild C-119 "Flying Boxcar." This big twin-engine cargo carrier has already flown fifteen big red International TD-14A crawler tractors from Seven Islands to Knob Lake. The tractors were shipped complete minus only their drawbars and track shoes and were driven on and off the plane under their own power. A capacity load for the "Boxcar" is 16,000 lbs. on this trip, just a shade more than the weight of the tractors.

Even rubber-tired earthmoving scrapers of eight cubic-yard capacity for use with the tractors have been carried by the "Boxcar" without dismantling—with one inch to spare on each side.

The Knob Lake airstrip was started in 1947 by a small International crawler tractor, flown in, piece by piece, in a flying boat which was able to land on Knob Lake itself. Now about 5,000 feet long, the gravel airstrip easily handles Douglas C-47s and the Fairchild "Flying Boxcar." The little International TD-6 tractor first brought in is still working on road construction in the area.

TWO YEARS FROM now, the 350-mile railroad now under construction will reach Knob Lake from Seven Islands. In the meantime, the airlift supplies the mine development work at Knob Lake and supplies the construction camps building the railroad by means of two other airstrips along the line.

Hydro-electric power will be developed at two dams to supply power to the mines, railroad, townships, and terminals. Scheduled for first construction is a dam at the rapids of Lake Menik, which will be of the earth-fill type and will act as a bridge for the railroad. Generating capacity of the power plant at this dam will be 30,000 hp., scheduled for delivery in 1953. The second dam, also of 30,000 hp., will supply power to the ore docks and rail terminal at the town of Seven Islands.

When operations are in full swing, I.O.C. expects to produce 10 million tons a year, with production, transportation, and dock facilities designed for twice that tonnage. But before a ton of ore is moved, close to 200 million dollars will have been invested in the project by that time, about half of the money going for railroad construction.

THE FICTION CORNER

PINKY

By Sallydale Wimbrow

JULIA WARREN looked up from her pie-baking suddenly, and thought it had happened. "Bud," she called, "Please try to keep Pinky by your side. He'll get hurt if he keeps chasing cars the way he does."

She watched Bud through her kitchen window as he scolded Pinky by waving a fat finger at him. "Mustn't do, Pinky! Mustn't do, you're a bad dog!" Then he pushed along the sidewalk in his wagon, Pinky at his side.

Julia went back to baking her apple pie, a worried look on her face. Pinky was lovable, but his habit of chasing cars through the streets of Collinsville made Julia dread the event which must inevitably occur. Julia had urged her husband Mark to persuade Bud to give up the dog, but Mark was too soft-hearted.

"It will break the boy's heart," he would say. Not nearly as badly as it would if something dreadful happened to Pinky, Julia always thought. That could be something Bud might never get over. That might be something he would always remember like a sharp continuous pain. Julia knew well it would be that way.

She tried to cast thoughts from her mind that were like jagged glass. She opened the oven door, saw that the pie was almost brown enough to take out.

Then she heard it—heard it like she knew she would, like she had heard it once before in the recesses of her mind. Bud's scream, a car's futile brakes, Pinky's agonizing bark.

All she could hear then were Bud's sobbing words: "Pinky! Pinky!"

Mustn't do, Pinky! Mom says you're a bad dog!

They buried Pinky in a small wooden box in a corner of the back yard among the flowers. Julia put a marker with Pinky's name into the ground while Bud just watched and said nothing.

Julia did not know whether there was more sorrow than relief in her heart. Maybe it was better that it happened now instead of five or six years from now when Bud's love for Pinky would have been too large for the boy to forget. Bud could forget Pinky now as she had learned to forget...

At dinner that night there were not many words spoken. Mark patted his son's curly head, and tried to console him. "Pinky wouldn't like to see you so sad, son. He'd want you to remember him with a smile on your face, and forget what happened today."

Forget... forget, Julia looked at Bud's face and knew he would never forget. Young minds don't forget easily. They don't forget the most important things, Julia knew.

After dinner when the family was in the living room, Mark reading his paper, Bud playing listlessly with his blocks, Julia suddenly put down the sweater she was knitting. She got up from her chair and went towards the door.

"What's wrong, Julia?" Mark asked alarmed. "Nothing, dear. I must get some air. I think I'll see Helen Reynolds for a few minutes."

It did not take more than a few minutes. Julia was surprised how little time it actually took. If only other people had realized what little time it took.

It was not until Julia had stepped into the living room that Mark realized what Julia had done. He rose to meet her, proud of his wife. Julia knelt down beside Bud and showed him what her hands held. Bud's eyes brightened. It was a tiny bundle of fur. A month old cocker-spaniel with sleepy eyes, and pink ears.

"Pinky the Second," Julia said with a smile. Bud reached out chubby fingers for a new Pinky, a new hope.

Julia was glad she had remembered Helen Reynolds telling her about the litter of pups. She was glad she had remembered one day many years ago when she herself was young with important things in her life.

Julia watched the sadness melt from Bud's eyes as he fondled the pup. She remembered herself as a little girl on the day her own dog had been hit by a car. They thought she would forget. They had not understood... for she never forgot.

Plan Beauty Restoring Campaign To Look Best in Your Fall Clothes

By Ertia Haley

SUMMERTIME was fun time, but long hours of exposure to the sun's rays may have left your skin dry and flaky. After a season of beach and bathing, hours spent in just sitting to "get a tan," gardening and other outdoor activities, it's a good idea to plan a beauty restoring campaign to look your best during Fall.

As tans begin to fade, and they do so very soon after you've stopped exposing yourself to the sun, darker shades of make-up look most unattractive. Your skin is in different condition after summer than at the beginning of the season, so it may be a good idea to restock the beauty shelf.

Select some luxurious creams and lotions for a little splurging will pay off in glamour, and that's what you'll want with the new styles which are so elegant and romantic.

You'll need a good supply of cleansing cream, refreshing skin lotion, make-up base in one of the peach-colored Fall shades, night cream and a box of handy cotton squares for easy application.

When you choose lipstick, rouge and powder, keep in mind that you'll soon be wearing entirely different colors than during the hot months. There will be textured woollens, tweeds and darker shades. With bright accents like red destined for popularity this Fall, you'll have to

Restore Skin Beauty

Don't forget to include pre-bedtime care in your beauty program. Each night before retiring, remove stale make-up and dirt by applying cleansing cream to throat, neck and face. Wipe away with soft cotton squares. Stimulate circulation by splashing face with warm, then cold water.

Don't forget the eyelids when you put on the foundation. Unless they are covered, they cannot blend with the complexion.

Powder and rouge should not be rubbed into the skin. Any hard scrubbing action may damage the skin as well as harm facial muscles and glands. Put both rouge and powder with gentle motions. After applying, use a soft complexion brush to do away with any excess, especially at the hairline and the eyebrows. You want to achieve a smooth look, rather than a powdered look.

During the day, when make-up has to be refreshed, it's not wise to put another layer of powder on top of the one applied in the morning. Take a little time and a bit of cream and give yourself a quick cleaning, and start on a fresh face. The make-up will look better, stay longer and you'll avoid a face that looks like a mask.

Pre-Bedtime Care Does Wonders

Restore your beauty even while you sleep. It goes without saying that daytime make-up must all be removed if the skin is to be kept clear. Stale make-up and grit left on the skin for overnight can do nothing but harm for they clog the pores and give rise to blackheads.

Apply a thin layer of a penetrating cleansing cream over the face and throat using these upward outward motions that are so relaxing and circulation stimulating. Let this remain for a few minutes so that all the dirt can be removed from the pores. If you like, apply it before bathing or showering so the cream has a chance to do its work. Then wipe gently away.

If you have selected a deep cleansing cream, a second application will not be necessary after the first one is removed. Now, splash warm, then cold water over the face, neck and throat. This is refreshing and also stimulates circulation.

While you're on a facial beauty program, look to your hands, ankles, knees and elbows, too. If sun exposure has left these dry, a thin layer of cream put on before retiring will work wonders.

Keep Yourself Fit With Exercises

Everyone needs some exercise to keep the body normal, trim and limber. If you've been active in sports during the summer, and will be less so from now on, you'll need a few simple exercises to keep yourself feeling at peak condition.

Those who have been relatively inactive during the summer for one reason or another will probably look at themselves with horror in new clothes because they sag or bulge or slouch. A few minutes a day of exercise, done faithfully every day, not just spasmodically, can do an amazing amount for the figure in just a few weeks.

Do simple exercises because you can easily fall into the routine of them and thus make them a part of your keeping fit program. You can build them up to 15 minutes a day, if you like, but at any rate do start now.

Here Are Exercises For General Fitness

To take off excess padding all over the body, lie down flat on the floor. Bring up both legs at the same time, trying to touch the knees to the chest. Then start pedal motion, stretching legs as much as possible while doing this. Hands should lie flat on floor.

If you want to improve carriage, stand straight and hold a broom stick or cane in back. Bring the cane over the head to the chest, standing straight while doing this.

Use Make-up to Give Smooth, Natural Look

A foundation for powder and rouge is very much essential, es-

Russia Lurks in Background of Iran Oil Dispute

By Wright A. Patterson

AN EFFORT to settle the difficulty between the Iran government and the Iran-Anglo Oil Company, an English corporation, 54 per cent of the stock of which is owned by the English government, the government of Iran has asked President Truman to act in the capacity of mediator.

He accepted, but it means that the job will be performed by our British born and British sympathizing secretary of state, Dean Acheson. Small chance to get an unprejudiced effort to get a settlement on its merits.

And what is the heated argument all about? A number of years ago, a group of English capitalists, including the English government, organized the Iran-Anglo Oil Company for the purpose of producing the tremendous amount of oil in the Iran field. After making an agreement with the Iran government, the English company invested more than a billion dollars for a plant that would take the oil from the ground, refine it and market it.

Under the terms of the agreement with Iran, the English company was to pay the government of Iran 20 cents a barrel on all of the oil secured.

That agreement was satisfactory until American oil companies entered the Arabian fields and arranged to extract the oil of those Arabian countries and pay to the governments of those near East nations one half of the profits derived from their operations. Iran demanded a new deal, with a division of the profits on the oil taken from Iran wells. The English company refused to make a new arrangement, but did advance to 26 cents a barrel paid to the Iran government.

The present controversy is over a renewed demand of Iran for a new agreement on a profit-division basis. When that was refused, Iran seized and nationalized the oil fields and the plants of the English company, but because of a lack of trained technicians, Iran cannot operate the enormous plant, and the English government will not permit its citizens to work for Iran, and is taking all of them out of the country.

The only other available source of supply of technicians is Russia. With Russians in charge of the mammoth oil plant, Russia would get the product.

For Russia that represents one of the vital essentials for waging war against the free nations. Without an assured supply of oil, she could not long operate either her planes or her transport.

For the Iranian oil to fall into Russian hands would be a serious blow for the nations of the Atlantic Pact, including especially the United States and England.

The Iran government has announced that all the force that is available will be used to prevent England from sending a force into

Iran to protect English interests, which England would probably do if any effort is made to operate the mammoth plant.

The President and Secretary Acheson have a real problem to solve, a problem in which we all have a interest because of the danger of Iranian oil falling into the hands of Russia and being used against us, should that threatened war materialize.

But England can be assured of the very best our British-born secretary of state can render his native country.

The one thing in the way of preparedness that has not lagged is the demand for more appropriations and more taxes.

If, as has so often been said, Stalin's hope is to see a bankrupt America, he has active assistants in both the congress and the president.

The civilian employees of the department of defense, the army of bureaucrats commanded by General Marshall, outnumbers by better than two to one the fighting forces commanded by General Ridgway in Korea, and the compensation paid those in the bureaucratic army is far greater than that paid to our fighting forces. The difference is that those in the bureaucratic army and their relatives can be counted upon to vote for those who gave them a job.

Political Parade

CLEM WHITAKER, Jr.

California is slated to be the third most potent State at the Democratic National Convention next July, and probably will be tied with Pennsylvania as the second most powerful State when the Republicans meet to nominate a candidate for President earlier in the same month of July, 1952.

Thus the lusty, sprawling Golden Gate State, which only 101 years ago this September 9 was admitted to the Union, is emerging as a great political force in national elections. In time, California seems destined to lead a Western bloc of States that will rival the mighty Midwest and East. Certainly the West could soon become the balance of political power between the East and Mid-West.

Whether or not the general California public is aware of the State's strategic importance, politicians across the Nation know of it and are shaping their future plans accordingly. It's no secret that practically every known presidential aspirant, in recent weeks has had representatives in California with an ear to the ground for political sentiment.

New political muscles for California are the result of the recent congressional redistricting under the 1950 census.

On the basis of congressional reapportionment, the Democratic National Committee has awarded California 14 additional convention votes, an increase of from 54 to 68. Only New York with 90 delegates and Pennsylvania with 70 top this number.

The Republican National Committee is expected to make public its allotment of delegates to the various States next January when it meets in San Francisco to make convention arrangements. As of the present, however, on the basis of 1948 rules, the GOP national committee is expected to give California 70 votes, an increase of 17 from the 53 it wielded four years ago. If the estimate holds true, California's delegation will tie that of Pennsylvania as the second strongest while New York with a probable 96 delegates, will top the list.

Across the country, in the Democratic book, 10 states will lose and the remainder will gain convention votes, 13 will hold with their 1948 figure.

States losing power in the Democratic column are as follows (in view of the Truman-States losing votes): Alabama, Southern Democrat feud, it's Connecticut, Delaware, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, New Jersey, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

States gaining power for the 1952 Democratic convention are: California, Colorado, Florida, Iowa, Ohio, Texas, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Sparks

FROM THE NEWS CIRCUIT
JAMES DORRIS

In the long, still unsettled feud between the Federal government and the States of California, Louisiana and Texas over control of the oil-rich tidelands, the three States affected have enlisted the support of the other forty-five with a very trenchant argument:

"If Uncle Sam can confiscate our tidelands, he can just as easily take away your inland lakes and streams, your harbors and river beds."

Proponents of Federal ownership hold that argument to be ridiculous. Uncle, they contend, would never do anything like that. Currently, they are attempting to achieve deflection in the ranks of the States with a proposal to finance Federal aid to education with royalties from the tidelands oil.

So far, the education "bribe" hasn't effectively offset Congressional suspicion that what can happen to California, can happen to Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania for example, scoops a million tons of coal each year from its river beds. The State government of Delaware receives lease revenues from 50,000 acres of oyster beds. There are vast iron ore deposits under the Great Lakes, mineral lands in the Western States, and forests in the Northwest—title to which would be clouded if the extremists in the U. S.

Interior Department succeed in the tidelands grab.

Two current examples here in California confirm the fears of States Rights defenders. In San Diego County, the Justice Department has filed suit to seize water rights along the Santa Margarita River for the use of the Federal Government at Camp Pendleton. The rights of some 14,000 farmers are affected. And in the Sacramento Valley, a lawsuit has been threatened against California by the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation over the water rights of riparian users along the Sacramento.

Meantime, a bizarre scheme to grab the tidelands from the Interior Department succeeds in grabbing them from the States, has come to light. A private group, said to be headed by former automobile manufacturer E. L. Cord, has filed an application with the Department for 1900 acres of "public" land—specifically, the land on which all 40 of the producing offshore oil wells in Louisiana are located.

Basis for the Cord group's application is its possession of old land scrip certificates originally issued by Congress to veterans of the War of 1812, certain Indian wars and the Civil War. Each certificate entitles the holder, his heirs or assigns, to claim a tract of public land, usually 160 acres. They are entirely legal and the Government naturally has no record of how much unused scrip is still in circulation.

The Cord Group's claim to Louisiana's oil wells has been roundly denounced in Congress. And so far, the group hasn't offered to use the royalties to aid education in North Dakota, Indiana, or anywhere else.

Nothing Like the Fallbrook Case

by ED AINSWORTH
in Los Angeles Times

In my more than 30 years of newspaper work, I never saw anything like "the Fallbrook case."

Down there in the little San Diego farming community a few days ago a lot of plain American citizens with grievances against one branch of the Federal government—the U. S. Attorney General—who was trying to seize their water rights—came in from the hills to tell their troubles to their Congressmen at a formal hearing.

In the small, crowded high school auditorium newspapermen from all over the nation saw a strange spectacle unfold.

They saw, as it were, the clock turn back 200 years.

They saw the "town meeting," out of which was born the American Revolution and the American republic come alive before their eyes.

They saw and felt the appeal of poor men and women to the only source of help they knew—their elected representatives.

Many of these people never had seen a real live congressman before. They were respectful, impressed, completely confident of getting justice. Their stories were simple. Their language was sincere. Their patriotism was apparent.

The Congressmen, for their part, never had seen anything like this either.

They were used to complaints to requests for appropriations, to flattery, to sophistication.

This was all different.

Something happened in that room.

The quiet trust of the little farmers striving to obtain justice in the only way they knew how reached out and formed an almost visible communion with the minds and hearts of the five Congressmen sitting there.

This was more than mere government; this was the foundation of government.

I thought as I looked at the intent serious faces of the basic political maxim: That from concrete, specific, definite wrongs and injuries there comes at intervals in history the expression of pure, unpolished truths that carry men upward toward a more perfect goal on this earth.

It happened in the years before 1776.

Oppression and injustice, stamp acts and tea taxes brought forth finally the Declaration and the Bill of Rights.

And there in the little auditorium at Fallbrook the same force was at work.

The U. S. Attorney General could quibble, could bandy words, could toss meaningless legal phrases in his attempt to take away, without paying for it, the water of the Fallbrook people.

But these little farmers were not fooled.

Their sincerity, the basic rightness of what they were saying cut through all the legal sophistry.

The Congressmen weighed the evidence and knew what was right and what was wrong.

It was almost like a revival.

The opinion burst forth spontaneously, thus:

Rep. Clair Engle—The right of petition to Congress by the people for redress of wrongs is in no way abridged by pending judicial action. When the executive branch abuses power, the people in only a few ways can exercise relief and in these they must be protected.

Joe Hayes, a war veteran—"The government is you and I—and we must get on the ball to see we get proper government."

Rep. Norris Poulson—Justice is justice whether to a big or a little man.

Arnold Klaus, a war veteran—Go back to Washington and reassure the people by your action that we are the government.

Rep. John Saylor—I am not concerned with your politics or your religion. But the best judge of what is good for a local area is that area itself. That is the principle we must preserve.

State Sen. Howard Wilson—We will cease to be a nation of free men if we are ruled by men and not laws.

Rep. Sam Yorty—This is a case where it is already apparent without trying the lawsuit that it is immoral. Do not be deluded that this government is some mythical dictator with sovereign power. Do not forget that you people and you alone are the government.

All this made the Congressional investigation into the attempted seizure of water rights more than a mere inquiry.

It was a reaffirmation that when legalistic oppression becomes intolerable, the inalienable right of the people to appeal to Congress still operates.

All those who witnessed the scene in the high school auditorium exulted that such things still are possible.

Anthony Eden, British statesman, in S. F.—"The world situation will change for the better only if we prepare for the worst."

Checkup For School

His wardrobe may be complete, the new schoolbag ready with copybook, ruler and pencil-case, but your child may be far from prepared for school. A more important question than clothes or equipment is: "Has your youngster had a pre-school medical examination?"

For many reasons, the P. T. A., official health agencies and such organizations as your Tuberculosis Association are stressing complete physical examination of children before they enter school.

First, through pre-school examination, certain correctable defects and conditions which respond best to early treatment can be detected at an early age. Typical are: decayed and infected teeth, defective vision and hearing, infected tonsils, early rheumatic fever, early TB and anemia.

Secondly, a child has his best chance of getting the most out of school when he is in good physical condition. Good report cards generally are impossible if the child is out of school frequently with sore throats and toothaches, or if he cannot see the blackboard or hear the teacher.

Many children suffering from an undetected physical defect are unjustly labeled "mentally slow" when the pre-school correction of some physical deformity or illness might have made him a scholastic star.

Finally, a pre-school examination is one of the most important a child will ever undergo because it comes at a crucial time in his life. The child who is sent to school with the doctor's okay has the best chance of being a good pupil, easy to get along with and easy to adjust to the strange new life of getting an education.

Jack Hanna in Semi-Finals

The Jack Hanna Pontiac Junior Legion baseball club, champions of the Grossmont District, enters the semi-finals of the Legion playoffs and pending a victory over the North Park GEKS will play in the finals this weekend.

Thanks to a two-game triumph over Barnhill Rexall, Drags, National City winners, at Grossmont High last week-end in the quarter-finals, the Jack Hannans now enter the semi-finals at Navy Field, on Harbor Drive against the GEKS, who have won the North Park District title.

The winner of this week's clash at Navy Field meets the San Diego Boys' Club at Lane Field for the County championship.

Last Saturday the Hannans topped the first game of their playoff with Barnhill Rexall, 11-3, behind the eight-hit pitching of Fred Toze. Sunday they clinched the quarter-finals victory, edging Barnhill, 10-8. Pitcher Ray West helped his own cause tremendously with a three-run homer in the seventh frame. Results:

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

Fruit Candy Recipes

A new circular has been issued by the University of California College of Agriculture which tells home candy makers how to prepare various tasty and nutritious candies containing fruits. It has been written by Professor W. V. Cruess of the College of Agriculture and Dr. Florence Pen, former graduate assistant in the division of food technology.

Recipes are given for such candies as fruit panache, fruit fudges, fruit fondant, jelled fruit candy, fruit bars, sugared almonds and walnuts and others.

The publication is entitled "Homemade Fruit Candies," Circular 175, and is obtainable from the San Diego County Office of Agricultural Extension Service, 4005 Roscamers Street, San Diego 10.

How To Can Food

Use recommended canning methods in canning fruits and vegetables, suggests Delphine D. Wilson, Home Advisor, Agricultural Extension Service, University of California. Bulletins on Home Canning and Freezing food are available in the Agricultural Extension Service Office, 4005 Roscamers Street, San Diego 10.

Corn is in season now and the recommended method of canning corn is in the pressure cooker at 10 pounds pressure for 60 minutes for whole kernel corn and 100 minutes at 10 pounds pressure for cream style corn.

Green beans, corn, greens, peppers, banana squash, peas, meats and fish should be canned in the pressure cooker. Tomatoes, tomato juice and all fruits should be canned in the boiling water bath. Tomatoes should be processed for 35 minutes in the boiling water bath.

For successful canning, use new jar lids, jars with smooth glass rims, tested pressure cooker gauges, fresh prime food and recommended canning methods based on research work, Says Mrs. Wilson, Home Advisor.

Chinese Yams

True yams, rarely grown in this country, are now being raised commercially in California. Food value tests of this Chinese yam are being run by Yamaguchi, instructor in truck crops, University of California College of Agriculture. Though grown on a small scale at present, Chinese yams might one day be another important food crop in this state. Moist types of sweet potatoes are often called yams in this

There are about 12,000 acres of sweet potatoes grown in California each year. True yams are most frequently grown in the tropics where the season is longer than in this country. Both plants require a warm climate.

The long, thin tubers of Chinese yams vary in weight from less than one to several pounds. They are prepared and eaten like white or sweet potatoes.

FIRST AID to the AILING HOUSE

by ROGER C. WHITMAN

Question: Several times I have plastered bad parts of rooms and each time, try though I may, cracks appear in the plaster upon drying. I have tried retarding the drying, wetting the lath, but to no avail. Can you help me? Also, please tell me how to mix this plaster and in what proportion?

Answer: If you are not trying to replaster an entire room, merely to patch up some cracks or other bad places, I advise you to get a prepared patching plaster which needs only to be mixed with water to make a paste. This is slower drying than plaster of Paris, which hardens too rapidly to be easily worked. (Glue dissolved in the mixing water will slow the time of hardening; so will vinegar, mixed half and half with the water.) If the patching job has been done correctly and cracks reappear, particularly around window and door openings, it is possible that structural weakness is the cause. If so, the defect should be located and corrected.

Question: My husband is remodeling the kitchen, using tile-board for the ceiling. The bathroom is directly above. Whenever water is spilled on the floor it leaks down into the kitchen. We have tried caulking around the fixtures, with little success. What can we do about it?

Answer: The bathroom should have a good waterproof floor covering, such as clay tile, asphalt tile or linoleum. Until you do this, you will continue to have leaks.

HADACOL RELIEVES THAT TIRED FEELING, SAYS MR. HARRY ADKINS OF CALIFORNIA

HADACOL Helps Folks With Tired, Run-Down Conditions When Due to Deficiencies of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron

Mr. Harry Adkins, who lives at 5212 Vesper Drive, Van Nuys, California, says he used to feel tired and run-down at the end of a day's work. Now most everybody has to work these days, but it's not necessary to feel tired and drained of energy at the end of the day. For HADACOL can help if you feel tired and run-down when due to a deficiency of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in the system. Mr. Adkins says he started taking HADACOL and now feels much better—is no longer tired-out at the end of the day and has more energy.

Mr. Harry Adkins

Here is what Mr. Adkins says: "I had been feeling run-down and tired. About three months ago I started taking HADACOL. I had heard about it and how it had helped so many people, so I decided to try it to see if it would help me. After just a short time of taking HADACOL I could tell that I was feeling better. I no longer felt so tired after a day's work—just seemed to have more energy. I think HADACOL is a good product and I recommend it. I take it regularly each day to relieve that tired feeling at the end of the day, and it really does work."

HADACOL makes it possible to actually relieve the REAL CAUSE of that tired, run-down feeling when due to the lack of Vitamins B1, B2, Niacin and Iron in the system.

AND EVEN MORE IMPORTANT! Continued use of this great HADACOL not only gives continuous complete relief but helps prevent this condition from returning when due to such deficiencies. Now, that's the kind of product you have been waiting for. That's the kind you should buy and start taking at once. And HADACOL is so easy to take—comes in pleasant liquid form and is so easily and quickly absorbed and assimilated in the blood, ready to go to work for you immediately.

Save Water in September is Vital Need

Following is the essence of a proclamation made last (Wednesday) night by Mayor Butler of San Diego:

To every citizen of San Diego next month is "Critical September" in the vitally important water saving program which all of us must follow until a greater water supply is assured. I cordially invite all communities in San Diego County to join with the City of San Diego in the observance of "Critical September."

September is a critical month because it is a warm month and a period when the people here use the greatest amounts of water. The added quantities must come to a large degree from our reservoirs, which have reached a dangerously low level following many dry years that have failed to refill them.

There is but one sure way to provide a safe water supply for next year—and the year after that, too. It is to leave more water in our storage reservoirs by using less now. Most of the water consumed during September will be poured on lawns and gardens. Water for next year's needs can be saved now by applying it carefully and avoiding all wasteful practices.

During "Critical September" each one of you is asked to save water every day. In order to make a good start, the three-day Labor Day weekend starting Saturday, September 1, and ending the night of Labor Day should be regarded not only as a holiday, but also as a water holiday, a time to take a vacation from the use of water insofar as possible as well as taking a vacation from work.

As Mayor of the City of San Diego I therefore proclaim the coming month as "Critical September" and ask that it be observed by all citizens of this great and beautiful city.

All Western Days at El Cajon

The accent will be on entertainment in El Cajon on September 15 and 16, with Hollywood stars, parade, contests, Western music and amateur shows. The occasion is the Fourth Annual "All Western Days" celebration, sponsored by St. Mary's.

Church to raise funds for completion of a parochial school now under construction in the valley. The two-day celebration will be at the Veterans' Memorial Field, El Cajon Blvd. at Chambers Street. There will be no admission charge and ample parking will be available.

A special feature of this year's event is a Western amateur talent contest for children from six to 18 years, divided into two groups with separate prizes for the winners of each division.

Contestants may register by mailing an application to "Amateur Western Contest," 1189 Merritt Dr., El Cajon or phoning Mrs. Marge Snaile, H-6-5300 or Mrs. Ruth Violette, H-4-4596. Auditions will be held in El Cajon the week preceding "All Western Days" and each contestant will be notified when to appear. Final judging will take place on the stage to be erected at the fair grounds. Three requirements are necessary. The contestant must be of amateur standing. Instrumental or vocal talent only acceptable (no dancing). The theme of the performance must be Western.

Opening the two-day event will be a parade starting at 10:00 a. m. Saturday, forming at the El Cajon grammar school and traveling west on Main Street to the carnival grounds. Bands, wagons, horses and floats will make up the mule long parade.

The traditional array of Hollywood talent, good food, contests, games of chance and prizes that have made the annual event famous throughout the county will again highlight this year's celebration.

If you build Junior's garden swing with wooden posts, be sure the lumber has been pressure treated with copper-arsenate wood preservative. This protects the posts against weakening from termites and rot.
